

American History Supplementary Materials Permission Form

The primary instructional materials used in 8th grade American history include our American Nation textbook, maps, magazine articles, photographs, and other historical documents. In addition to the primary instructional materials, there are a variety of supplementary materials which are used to extend or expand our studies. Our supplementary materials include four novels and two feature films.

The two feature films are:

Glory: Classroom Edition - 1989, originally rated R, professionally edited for schools
Dances with Wolves - 1990, rated PG-13

The four novels are:

Carlota - by Scott O'Dell, 144 pgs.
Rifles for Watie - by Harold Keith, 332 pgs.
Runs with Horses - by Brian Burks, 118 pgs.
Land of Hope - by Joan Lowry Nixon, 130 pgs.

In accordance with the School Board policies governing the use of supplementary materials and films, alternate assignments can be provided for the films, and alternate titles can be arranged for the novels.

If you would like to see additional information about these materials — summaries, ratings explanations, etc. — before granting permission for their use, please go to following web page:
